

TERRY DAVIS

Terry Davis is a former senior manager in the not-for-profit and government sectors. He held an executive level position in the federal public service for eight years, working as Regional Director of Communications in Fisheries and Oceans Canada's Pacific region. Davis also worked in Parks Canada as Manager of Strategic Communications, and as Manager of Communications with the Canadian Council of Professional Engineers.

A journalist by training, Davis was Publications Manager with the Canadian Dental Association and is a former editor of Canadian Thoroughbred magazine as well as the Atlantic Salmon Journal.

In his career he has both supported and served on boards of directors and chaired a stakeholder advisory committee. He also ran and worked a thoroughbred horse farm for a number of years, giving him direct experience in and knowledge of the agricultural sector.

Today Davis is a writer. He has penned two mystery novels, Revelation of the Black Horse (2025) and The Pale Horse (2022), and is currently completing his next book, Fall of the White Horse.
